

Darria Long Gillespie, MD, MBA, FACEP

Darria Long Gillespie, MD, MBA, FACEP ranks as one of America's foremost experts on maximizing ROI in healthcare. After she joined the faculty of Harvard Medical School immediately after residency as a practicing emergency physician, digital health engagement company Sharecare appointed Long Gillespie to Senior Vice President of Clinical Strategy. She frequently speaks as a medical expert on national TV including CNN and FoxNews, and serves as national spokesperson for the American College of Emergency Physicians.

As Senior Vice President of Clinical Strategy at the nation's leading digital health engagement company, she helps create and execute Sharecare's vision for being the homepage for health. Long Gillespie leads the clinical strategy and development of Sharecare's employer health wellness solution, combining the best medical evidence and behavioral science into the company's cutting-edge engagement platform. She also oversees content for Sharecare's award-winning app, AskMD, and leads Sharecare's Scientific and Medical Advisory Council.

A board certified and practicing emergency physician, Dr. Long Gillespie is a frequent health expert on national TV, including CNN, CNBC, FoxNews Network, The Doctors, and The Dr. Oz show. In addition, she is a featured blogger on The Huffington Post for "The Busy Woman's Guide to Health...and Sanity," MindBodyGreen.com, DoctorOz.com and has authored hundreds of articles on these sites, as well as on The Newborn Channel and KevinMD.

Dr. Long Gillespie earned her medical degree from the University of Rochester School of Medicine and her MBA from Harvard Business School. After completing residency in Emergency Medicine at the Yale University School of Medicine, she joined the faculty at Harvard Medical School where she worked in the ER at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center in Boston, MA.

Widely regarded as an authority on creating/executing/implementing digital strategies for health, Dr. Gillespie continues to practice medicine as an ER physician. Her unique position at the intersection of medicine, media, and business enables Dr. Gillespie's deep understanding of the stakeholders necessary for transforming the way we think about health.