

Dan Abrams

Dan Abrams is the Legal Analyst for ABC News, a substitute anchor for Good Morning America, and the host of Discovery ID's "Chasing Justice with Dan Abrams." Prior to 2011, Dan was at NBC for 15 years as, among other things, a reporter for NBC Nightly News, host on MSNBC, and Chief Legal Correspondent for NBC News. From 2006 to late 2007, Dan served as General Manager of MSNBC, where he presided over a period of unprecedented growth, with ratings and profits each increasing well over 50% during his tenure. During that time Dan was also a member of the NBC Universal President's Council.

A graduate of Columbia University Law School, Dan is also a recognized writer. He has published articles in the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Newsweek, The Yale Law and Policy Review, The Huffington Post, The Daily Beast, and Mediaite, among many others. He is also the legal columnist for Men's Health magazine. Dan recently published his first book, Man Down: Proof Beyond A Reasonable Doubt That Women Are Better Cops, Drivers, Gamblers, Spies, World Leaders, Beer Tasters, Hedge Fund Managers, and Just About Everything Else.

Dan is the founder and CEO of Abrams Research, a firm dedicated to helping clients develop their social media strategy, improve businesses' relationships with their consumers, and drive traffic to their web properties. He is also the publisher and founder of eight web properties: Mediaite, a news and media website; Geekosystem, covering tech and geek culture; Styleite, which covers beauty and fashion; Sportsgrid, which follows sports and sports-related media, Gossip Cop, which monitors false reporting in the celebrity gossip industry; The Mary Sue, a site for female geeks, and The Jane Dough, a site devoted to women's career and business news and The Braiser, devoted to following celebrity chefs. Together, the Abrams Media Network serves close to 10 million unique visitors per month.
