JEFF PEARLMAN

Jeff Pearlman is the New York Times best-selling author of eight books, including biographies of Brett Favre, Walter Payton, Barry Bonds, Roger Clemens and the 1986 New York Mets and 1990s Dallas Cowboys. He is a former ESPN columnist and Sports Illustrated senior writer whose 1999 profile of then-Atlanta Braves pitcher John Rocker remains one of the most widely read stories in the magazine's 64-year history. He has covered everything from the World Series to the Olympics to the World Electric Football Championships and women's mud wrestling.

A multi-time Best American Sports Writing honoree, Jeff has made hundreds of appearances on national sports television, and is a weekly regular on ESPN Radio. He has been called "an insider's insider" (Sports Illustrated) and "one of the best sports biographers in the country" (Bleacher Report).
