Elvis Francois, MD

Dr. Elvis is a Spine Surgeon in training. Having completed his residency in Orthopedic Surgery at Mayo Clinic he is now in his final year of training at Beth Israel Deaconess, Harvard Medical School. Beyond his practice as an Orthopedic Surgeon, he has a unique passion for sharing his voice with uplifting music both in and outside of the hospital. Clinically, he has published many peer reviewed scientific publications and lectured at national and international conferences on a variety of medical topics. In 2018, he gained national attention for an impromptu rendition of Alright performed after a trauma call shift. Since that time, Dr. Elvis has been featured on The Ellen Show, Forbes, Rolling Stone, Good Morning America, Today, and the View, among countless other mainstream media appearances. His music covers have amassed well over 10 million views on Facebook and Instagram. In 2020, he produced an album of song covers which peaked at #2 on the iTunes charts and top 20 on the Billboard charts. 100% of proceeds from this album were donated directly to a Covid-19 relief charity.
